介

Texas Global at the University of Texas at Austin is pleased to offer the Virtual International Academy for university-level students in winter 2023. Classes will be delivered 100% online through live synchronous instruction with distinguished faculty from a top-ranked global university. Students will gain first-hand experience in their selected track with a curriculum that focuses on practice, problem-solving, and application, while improving their ability to communicate their subject-area knowledge in English with oral and written communication classes. Using the Zoom platform, students will experience the same interactivity and content depth of an in-class experience. The course will be managed through the Canvas learning management system. This program will provide a unique opportunity for international students to gain experience from UT Austin's expert faculty and resources while remaining in their home country.

学 交

The Oral Communication class will focus on listening comprehension, speaking fluency, and pronunciation - particularly those areas that are challenging to Chinese speakers. In this interactive class, students will explore these skills through a variety of activities, such as listening to lectures, participating in discussions, giving presentations, and practicing using new vocabulary and expressions. This Written Communication class is designed to improve students' writing skills in English. Lessons will focus on many types of writing such as journals, timed writings, and writing assignments. Students will learn the standard format for academic writing and practice using this format for assignments. The class will also practice skills such as paraphrasing, writing summaries, and writing personal reactions.

Students will attend live virtual classes five days per week for a total of 60 program hours. Classes will take place Monday-Friday for two consecutive weeks in three-hour time blocks. Each day, students will login to classes at specified class times using Zoom, where faculty will meet the students in a virtual classroom. Students will be able to see and hear their teacher and classmates just as they would in a live classroom.

Students will join the virtual classroom using a Zoom link posted on their course page in Canvas. VPN is not required to access the UT Zoom platform; however, students will need a University of Texas electronic ID, which we will provide, and they will login using two-factor authentication with their cell phone. Once students click the link and join the meeting, they will see their instructor and classmates through the Zoom platform. Faculty will be able to share their screens with the class, draw on a virtual white board, and divide the class into smaller breakout groups for pairs and group work.

会

Prior to the start of the program, staff will host a live virtual orientation for students, which will cover programmatic and logistical aspects of the program. Students will be issued an electronic ID (EID) and login credentials for secure and private access to university platforms such online libraries and other exclusive resources. Staff will also present live tutorials on how to use the Canvas learning management system and Zoom video conferencing platform. This training aims to ensure that students get first-hand experience using the platforms before the program has started and so that students of varying levels of technology skills will feel comfortable navigating the platforms. The orientation will be recorded and shared with all students to allow for additional viewing opportunities.

估 书

Student progress will be measured during the program through active participation, homework, and quizzes. Coursework accounts for 80% of the grade and the final exam counts for 20% of the grade. The instructor will assess student performance and record grades in the Canvas learning management system. Students will be able to access Canvas and review their grades throughout the course. Students who attend 85% of the live course sessions and receive A, B, or C grades will be awarded a completion certificate. Certificates and grade forms will be emailed to students at the conclusion of the course.
